

BABYLON in association with the 55th BFI London Film Festival presents:

BABYLON BURNING

Date:	Sunday 16th October
Time:	11am – 12.30pm
Venue:	Project Space, BFI Southbank, London

For the last five years BABYLON has brought together filmmakers of Europe's varied migrant and diasporic communities in a shared development forum dedicated to the exploration and extension of Europe's cultural diversity in film.

With the backing of the EU's MEDIA MUNDUS, BABYLON INTERNATIONAL has now extended that bridge to Africa.

On this fifth anniversary, BABYLON BURNING assembles leading and emerging filmmakers from across Europe (and beyond) to describe their work and address some difficult questions in a panel discussion

- Is the UK out of step with its European and other partners?
- Is the shift in national policy a threat to our filmmaking output?
- How should filmmakers understand and represent a riot-torn society?

The panel discussion will be followed by refreshments and a chance to 'meet and mingle'.

To apply for a place at this event, please email indevents11@bfi.org.uk with 'Babylon Burning' in the subject field.